Safe at Any Distance.

Last Saturday six sports shouldered a gun and wended their way to the old rubber mill, where a trap was set to throw old pigeons, of which there were six dozen.

Each man fired at a pigeon in turn as it sailed in the air from the trap 18 yards distant. The shooting ceased only when all the ammunition was gone and 126 shots were fired, as there were four pigeons enough left for two or three more such shooting matches.

There were three or three dozen not used at all, besides those broken by the fall on the ground. The firing must have been as accurate as that of the Spaniards in Cuba.

This Year's Holiday Business.

A GAZETTE reporter this week made inquiries at a number of different business houses to compare the holiday trade this year with that of last season. The buying at the Bristol stores was very slow and behind that of last year until last Thursday, when the influx began, and on Saturday business was much better than that of last season. The country people particularly buying on that day. The business for the month of December will average about the same or a little better than that of last season. Some of the stores far exceeded last year's sales, but the majority were about even. Some few felt a little behind. The Christmas edition of the Gazette, which was filled with holiday advertising, seems to have amply fulfilled its mission, as its advertisers were mostly the lucky ones.

Express business is a good thermometer of the times. Mr. Goble, of Adams' express at Bristol, says that the holiday business was larger this year than any previous one. The incoming business was greater than that for three years back, and the outgoing, which denotes buying at home, was by far greater than ever before. The number of parcels received from Philadelphia and Trenton at the baggage office by the five-cent delivery, was the largest in Casper Ingemann's experience. Mr. Fowler, the ticket agent at the railroad station, says the tickets sold during the holidays were many more than last, but as yet he had made no exact comparison. Railroad travel generally has been much heavier than during previous holiday seasons. All of these things, which are not perceptible to the casual observer, denote better times, and Bristol seems to be coming in for its share.

Methodist Musical Service.

The musical programme at the Methodist Episcopal Church on last Sunday evening was particularly enjoyable. The selections were all well rendered and the large chorus composed of about forty voices showed the training and time spent upon the music. Between the numbers several little girls of the Sunday School gave recitations. The programme was as follows:

Organ Voluntary: "Praise God from Whom All Blessings Flow." Hail All Hail, Heavenly Father, by Chas. "Hail to God in the Highest," from Ammanus.

BASKET BALL GALORE.

FIRST TEAM VICTORIOUS WHILE THE SECOND IS DEFEATED BY TRENTON'S FIVE.

A large crowd was at the rink on last Friday evening to see the 1st and 2d Bristol teams play the first of the series of games in the new schedule. The first team of the Bristol Association lined up against the strong Manheim team, of Philadelphia, and came off the conquerors by the large score of 21 to 4.

The feature of the game was the swift playing by Snow and Johnson for the home team, the latter throwing three goals from the field. Greely was the only man to score for the Manheim boys, making a goal from the field and one from a foul. Snow and Johnson also made one goal each from foul. Manheim made but one point in the last half, a goal from foul by Dunn, who took the place of Keats' defense, he taking the place of Miller, their centre. Miller was injured. It was a good game. The line-up follows:
